DELHI: In the wake of virus cases in Kerala, the Council for Medical Research (ICMR) has written to Queensland government in Australia asking it to provide an antibody developed there to see if it can "neutralise" the virus in humans. The antibody has not been tested on humans.

"We have asked them to see if their monoclonal antibody is neutralising a test in India to see if it can neutralise the virus in humans." In Australia, it has only been tried in artificial conditions, in a test tube) and has been found to be effective.
